Roman Catapults

The Roman's used catapults to help them attack their enemies from far away to reduce the risk of themselves getting hurt.

It also allowed them to attack enemies who were hiding behind walls or in forts as the catapults could fire with enough power to break down stone walls!

Your task:

- Complete your design booklet but do NOT make your catapult just yet!
- Look at different structures and decide upon which one will be the strongest.
- Choose a style of catapult that you think will work the best.
- Make a list of materials that you will need to make your catapult.
